These shocking photos show the damage caused by the extreme floods in Valencia three months on from the deadly natural disaster. As if it were a scene from an apocalypse movie, these images show what Valencia looks like today after the Spanish region was hit by extreme flooding in October.

The trail of devastation left behind countless damaged and overturned cars, concrete shattered into pieces, and piles of waste strewn across the land. Photographer Olivier Jarry-Lacombe, who captured these images, said the landscape was so ravaged he felt like he was on a battlefield. SEE OUR COPY FOR DETAILS.
