

FEATURE - Familie Bär geht fischen

Reference

DUK10019302_005

Title

FEATURE - Familie Bär geht fischen

Creation date

20150822

Caption

MANDATORY CREDIT: Mike Korostelev/Rex Shutterstock. Only for use on this story. Editorial Use Only. No stock, books, advertising or merchandising without photographer's permission

Mandatory Credit: Photo by Mike Korostelev/REX/Shutterstock (5634572j)

The brown bear mother and her cubs at her fishing spot on the bridge

Bear family go fishing, Kamchatka, Russia - 22 Aug 2015

FULL COPY: <http://www.rexfeatures.com/nanolink/s6x4>

These amazing pictures show a family out for a charming fishing trip on a rickety bridge - they just happen to be brown bears.

Wildlife photographer Mike Korostelev captured the amazing scenes as a mother bear took her cubs along for a day out at Kuril Lake in Kamchatka, Russia.

Mike, who has been following the progress of the family, explains: "When she was still young we named this female bear Pushkin, after Alexander Pushkin, for her lush hair and sideburns. She has now had three remarkable cubs.

"It all began with the fact that Pushkin began to come and fish near the fence of KamchatNIRO, the research institute of fishery.

"While she went into the water to catch fish, her small cubs shivered and hung on the edge of the fence on the bridge."

(FOTO:DUKAS/REX)

Special instructions

(c) Dukas

City

Credit
DUKAS
Source
REX
Author
/ 5634572j
Original references
5634572j