A 15-year-old boy has been stabbed to death in the street in south London. The victim, who was pronounced dead at the scene in Thornton Heath, is the second teenager to be fatally knifed on the capital's streets in just 24 hours. Police were called at 11pm on Tuesday to a male stabbed in Georgia Road near the junction with Green Lane. Paramedics rushed to save him but he was pronounced dead shortly before midnight. Georgia Road remained cordoned off on Wednesday morning as police officers combed the scene. There have not been any arrests yet.
