

FEATURE - Blutegel Therapie in Indien

Reference

DUK10087990_034

Title

FEATURE - Blutegel Therapie in Indien

Creation date

20180321

Caption

March 21, 2018 - Srinagar, Jammu & Kashmir, India - Traditional health worker uses leeches to suck blood as part of a treatment at Hazratbal on the banks of the Dal Lake on the outskirts of Srinagar Summer capital of Indian administered Kashmir. Every year traditional health workers in Kashmir use leeches to treat people for itchy, painful lumps that develop on the skin called chilblains acquired during winter on Novroz, which marks the first day of spring and the beginning of the year in the Persian calendar (FOTO: DUKAS/ZUMA)

Special instructions

(c) Dukas

City

Srinagar

Credit

DUKAS

Source

ZUMA

Author

/ 20180321_zaa_p133_355

Original references

ZUMA-20180321_zaa_p133_355.jpg