A member of staff gives a demonstration of how to check-in at Henn-na Hotel Hamamatsucho on April 25, 2018, Tokyo, Japan. The new branch of Henn-na Hotel, which translates literally as "weird hotel," is located near to the World Trade Center Building and Hamamatsucho Station. It is managed by humans and uses robots programmed to attend guests in English, Chinese, Korean and Japanese. Japanese travel agency H.I.S. operates the hotel which has 14 floors and 118 rooms, with rates starting from JPY12,000 per night. The new hotel includes an AI (Artificial Intelligence) Robot Clinic with dental, dermatology and general medical services. It is set to open from April 27. (Photo by Rodrigo Reyes Marin/AFLO)
