Caption

Robotic fishes are seen swimming inside an aqua tank at the lobby of Henn-na Hotel in Asakusabashi on July 10, 2018, Tokyo, Japan. Henn-na Hotel, which translates literally as "weird hotel," is set to open a new hotel on July 13 in an area of traditional Japanese dolls stores near Asakusabashi Station. Robot staff at the hotel are programmed to attend guests in English, Chinese, Korean and Japanese. Henn-na Hotel is managed by Japanese travel agency H.I.S. and the new location has 12 floors and 145 rooms, with rates starting from JPY10,000 per night. The new hotel also showcases products from Japanese crowdfunding platform Makuake. (Photo by Rodrigo Reyes Marin/AFLO)
