Caption

November 5, 2018 - Baxley, Georgia, U.S. - Supporters of Georgia candidate governor Stacey Abrams cheer at the Parker-Harrell Progressive Resource school on Monday, following a strategy of aggressively courting votes in tiny rural towns often overlooked by Democratic candidates. Abrams, who could become the nation's first black woman governor, is in a close tie with opponent Brian Kemp in one of the most-watched mid-term races (FOTO: DUKAS/ZUMA)
