A robotic bartender that can crafts cocktails from a store of 158 different drinks, has gone on sale. Called Toni, it shakes, stirs and mixes recipes to perfection using artificial intelligence with a €99,000 Euro price tag. The unit features a bar-height platform with two robotic arms. The bottles of drink needed to make cocktails are suspended overhead. When a specific cocktail is ordered via an app, the device selects the appropriate shots. It has a memory containing hundreds of drinks recipes. It comes with an illuminated wall that displays real-time info about people's favorite cocktails. It has been created Italian company Makr Shkr.
